LEEDS NEEDS TRAMS

Leeds is the largest city in Western Europe without a mass transit system, forcing residents to use congested roads or often unreliable buses.

In October the Government announced it was going ahead with plans for a new Leeds tram. If built, a tram line will speed up travel in Leeds, cut congestion, and help tackle climate change.

Join us for a public meeting, bringing together members of the public, politicians, and businesses to discuss our plan for speeding up getting the Leeds tram rebuilt. Join us at our meeting and let's make it happen!
